

Enterprise software

for your small business

Fhoster is a technology venture started in September 2006, aiming to deliver on-demand information systems to small businesses via an innovative web-based platform called LiveBase, currently under development .

Fhoster's mission is to turn custom information systems (now an up-front risky investment) into an inexpensive commodity available on-demand to any small business for a small monthly fee.

For small and mid-sized businesses who frequently have to build just-in-time, tactical database applications for either production or front-office purposes, LiveBase is also an extremely efficient and error-proof environment for setting up, in just a matter of hours, systems that would take weeks to develop otherwise.

News

June 30, 2010 Heating up for prime-time

Long time since I last updated this bog, but I've been stuck in a number of different activities related to our next (public beta) release that drove my attention away from this web-site. Another reason why I'm not updating this web site very often,...Continue